

High Performance Culture

We have all seen them, heard about them, aspired to them but have you ever played on a winning team? The fatal mistake made in teams trying to win is the belief that someone else is responsible for setting the tone of the team; for creating the conditions to win. Wrong. All great teams have people who want to be accountable, who want the challenge and who want to be part of something bigger than themselves. If this is the goal how do you design, build and be a part of this team?

In this inspirational speech Mike will help you understand how all great teams think on a daily basis. What they commit to doing but also more importantly what they commit to NOT doing from a behavior and team mentality. Inspirational, winning teams are not born, they are created and developed moment by moment by everyone involved.

You will learn:

- How to embrace uncertainty and volatility in the market and seeing it as part of your competitive advantage as a team.
- Setting the conditions for talent to show their abilities within a team setting
- Creating a 'Curiosity led' team mentality
- Generating Ruthless Execution at both an individual and team level.
