

Managing Top Talent

We all sit back and admire great talent when we see it. When we see great talent working selflessly and in great harmony we know this is a very rare sight in sport or business. Stop admiring and start creating it yourself.

All great teams didn't start great. They were formed, nurtured and developed along the way. Through working intimately over two decades with some of the very best sports teams including Champions League winners Chelsea, Real Madrid; NBA 2014 Champions San Antonio Spurs and 2011 and 2013 Tour de France winners Team Sky, Mike has the unique position of seeing up close and personal some of the world's greatest ever talent. His one piercing insight through this journey: Building talent teams is a process that anyone can follow and replicate.

Building talented teams starts with fundamental building blocks focused on several key steps, each one critical for laying the foundations for sustained high performance.

You will learn:

- How do you create an environment where top talent will be attracted to and want to stay with you on the journey?
- How do create a set of clear boundaries for the great talent to express themselves but doing so as clear team players?
- How do motivate and lead your talented team to new levels of high performance?
- How do you get your talent to continue to 'Win after Winning' – to not settle for previous success and to push onto the next level?

Are you tired of being part of an underperforming team?

Frustrated in being in a team that has obvious great talent and amazing potential that doesn't deliver consistently?

There is a tool kit and approach waiting for you to build your own talent factory
